

The Face of Gray Divorce

Jeffrey N. Greenblatt | Joseph Greenwald & Laake PA

You've had more years to accumulate assets but less time left to make up for the financial losses occasioned by divorce. "Gray Divorce" creates a unique set of challenges, including increased expenses for two households, changes in tax liability and division of pensions. Prior estate planning becomes useless, and in Maryland, alimony is neither automatic nor deductible by the payor.

Offering more than 40 years of experience with emphasis helping well-established individuals through this difficult time, Jeffrey N. Greenblatt represents clients in the areas of divorce, alimony, complex marital property and pension divisions, business valuations, and Separation Agreements. He is a renowned family law attorney backed by his team of peers with expertise in estate planning, accounting and valuations to protect and secure his clients' financial future.
